

PUBLIC SOLICITATIONS AND ADVERTISING IN THE SCHOOLS

The Duxbury Public Schools shall cooperate with organizations in order to help them forward activities which serve to enrich the experiences of children. Such organizations include Duxbury school-related organizations; youth-oriented non-profit organizations; charitable organizations; and political, religious, and social organizations. A determination by the Superintendent or his/her designee will be made in each instance regarding whether the overall effect created and time consumed will foster or detract from the achievement of the stated educational goals of the Duxbury Public Schools.

The schools will not distribute literature, nor provide access to students and staff, for organizations or persons whose primary purpose is commercial. However, this shall not be interpreted to include contacts which fall into the normal business functions of the school or of school organizations. Examples of contact falling into the normal business functions of the schools are an authorized school photographer, or class ring sales person. Examples of individuals or groups which might wish unauthorized access are commercial tutors and schools, commercial groups organizing travel, commercial summer camps, ski schools, driving schools, and vendors of goods and services.

Free classroom materials such as book covers, calendars or other handouts bearing commercial advertising may be used or distributed if their purpose is judged by the principal to be primarily educational rather than commercial. The Duxbury Public Schools, however, do not grant permission nor encourage business persons outside of the schools to solicit advertising for such book covers, calendars or other handouts. Advertising in school publications is permitted.
